Horses are like people. Some are dumbbells and others are smart. In the early days, Dad had pasture parties after the round-up and branding of cattle and horses where there was wrangling of horses and cattle—ending in bronco busting and lariat artistry in a corral of horses and steers. The well-known Maud Noy brothers, Jack Chew and others were deep-dyed in the lore of steer wrestling — the forerunner of the rodeo.

Christenbury Farms. I remember being "taken for a runaway ride" down the old "Berg" road when my horse saw the first puffing, dirt throwing, smoke-clouded horseless buggy on this road to Mantil. This was when people gathered in groups along the highway to see the automobile pass — and view the occupants, swathed in ulsters and sporting the fancy, ribbon-trimmed automobile head-gear and goggles. The whip stock and kerosene lamps were in place — a nostalgic emblem of the old buggy days. I also remember affording 25 cents to view the displayed marvelous automobile threatening to replace the rubber-tired buggy. It was on a platform on the top floor of Marshall-Field, Chicago in 1900. I did not imagine I would ever ride in one.

There were open jumpers, children's ponies—once in a while a five gaited horse came along. He would walk, trot, canter, slow gait, and rack, but more often the three-gaited saddle horse would be shown to walk, trot, and canter. The slow gait and the rack were not normal gaits and must be taught to the equine. Sometimes a three horse was shown, first harnessed to a suitable cart and exhibited for suitability for harness, then unhitched in the ring and exhibited under a saddle at the walk, trot, and canter. We, the family, often rode these interesting horses to pasture on the Antelope Farm. The county road from Gunnison to Mantil passed through the extensive acres of Antelope and
